Editorial Notes

[1] Cf. another example of a loss of property documented by the reference to a suit against the Chester coach to which Pennant refers in 1086, dated 19 May 1789.

[2] The year [17]86 was probably added at a later date by Richard Bull. Pennant's reference to a delay in his intended arrival in London in 1053, 4 March 1786, suggests that his London visit did not take place as early as January during 1786. The year 1785 is suggested instead as a possible date in view of the evidence of Pennant's movements provided by the Pennant-Bull correspondence as a whole.
