Dear Sir

Lothian's Hotel April 2^{d} 1794[1]

This is attended with my enquiry after y^{r} health: for I am sorry to hear you are not quite well. The more so as my time here is so short that I cannot possibly pay my respects to you. I set out on monday for Brighton that ~~she~~my^little daughter may this year inhale the salubrious air there, to which I think she owed her life. I hope miss Bulls[2] are well & beg my best compliments. I have seen Harden. Be so good as to permit him to copy my account of Lusty Packington in my tour from London to Dover.

Adieu Dear Sir,
Y^{r} affect. humble Serv^{t}

Tho. Pennant.

Richard Bull Esq^{re} | stratton street | Piccadilly.
