Looking into an old book of arms lately, I found the colors of the arms which you observed on Penmynydd house – Gules, Chevron argent between three saxons heads coup'd proper: with these words, Edneved Vaughan; of him doe descend men of Penmynydd in Anglesey, and Others. –

Gules, chevron argent between three helmets. Tudur the son of Grono, of him doe descend Owain Tudur who married Queene Katherin of whom descended the late ꝙQueene.[1]

I also ~~I~~Saw there – ~~[authorial]~~Azure, A Lion passant – guardant Or, armed gules, with these words; - Madoc Gloddaith, of him doe descend by marriage of his heirs female the Mostins of Flintshire.
and Argent, three Fesses waved azure, on the middle of them three birds? argent –
Yswittan Wyddel, of him doe descend divers gentlemen in north-wales. —— the last arms I fancy to have seen on some part of your house –

I beg my Respects to M^{rs}. & Miss Pennant and am, Dear Sir, your most humble Serv^{t}.

Hugh Davies –
Beaumares, Sept^{r}. 4th. 1779. ——
